STUDENT PROFILE: NATAN CAVALCA

Get to know Natan from Brazil, a member of Cast A 2017.

How did you hear about Up with People?

My wife, Kara Collins Cavalca ('15A), traveled in UWP and I came to visit her in one of the cities on the road. That week, I was able to spend a day with the cast as well as help with set up [for the show]. I realized how awesome an opportunity it would be to be a part of the program.

What aspects of your culture are you sharing with Cast A 2017?

I'm trying to show everyone that Brazil and its people can be so much more than what's shown on the news and that some stereotypes aren't necessarily true. For example, corruption is a big problem but it doesn't change the fact that most people work really hard to provide for their families. Health, education, and infrastructure issues affect the population but you will still see people with a smile on their faces, willing to help one another. I want people to acknowledge the problems but not be discouraged by them.

How has your host family experience been so far?

I have connected really well with every single [host family] and it has been great getting to know their stories. I think what I'll take away most from the host family experience is the moment where the families stopped being my host family and became my real family.

What do you think of Up with People's current show, The Journey?

I think the show has a really powerful message and it makes people think. It's a great way to show people what we stand for and that it's possible to work together towards a common goal. I think my favorite song in the show is "Crossroads" - which highlights the refugee crisis—because it has such a strong message.

Tell us about your favorite community action day.

I love going into classrooms where the students don't know what to expect of us and are also a little skeptical. By the time we're done with the activities, you can see in their eyes that we sparked something in them. We made them think and question things. We listened to their opinions and respected them. It's really cool to be a part of that.

SPREAD THE WORD ABOUT UP WITH PEOPLE JR.

Six sites will take place around the United States this summer.

Up with People Jr. (UWP Jr) is growing just as fast as our campers. This summer UWP Jr is proud to announce that we will be leaving our mark in six states across the United States including Greensboro, NC; Zionsville, IN; Gwinnet County, GA; Phoenix, AZ; Denver, CO; and Portland, OR. With your help, we just might make it to your neighborhood soon. To catch all the UWP Jr happenings, check out our website. We will keep you posted on all six sites throughout the summer. We would like to take a moment and spotlight two of this summer's sites and the alumni who are helping to make them a reality.

Can we get a big UWP round of applause for Caroline Schwiebert ('93B) and Lindsay Adams ('84D)? Caroline will be the Site Director for our Portland, Oregon site, while Lindsay will be the Denver, Colorado Site Director. The Denver camp will be held from June 19—30 at Centennial Elementary in Firestone, CO (30 miles north of Denver). The Portland session is July 17-28.

What piqued your interest to host UWP Jr in your community?

LA: As someone who works with elementary-aged students in both a child care and camp setting, currently there is nothing like UWP JR being offered in our area. It encompasses music, movement, team building, leadership, creative projects, service learning, and fun! It's the whole package!

What do you feel will be the largest benefit for young UWP Jr day campers?

LA: My hope is that students will come away from camp being energized by new friendships and experiences, and empowered by the UWP message to know they are valued and capable of doing great things!

What do you feel will be the largest benefit for young UWP Jr day campers?

LA: My hope is that students will come away from camp being energized by new friendships and experiences, and empowered by the UWP message to know they are valued and capable of doing great things!

What makes UWP Jr different than other summer day camps for 8 – 11 year olds?

CA: I think a lot of day camps are fun places to send your kids to simply keep them busy on a hot summer day. There's definitely something to be said for that and kids learn just by being together and playing. But with UWP Jr, the kids are not only learning to work together, but are also learning about each other in a new way. We are celebrating differences and what it means to make a impact.

Why do you think it is important for UWP alumni to get involved in this way?

CS: Alumni truly "get" the impact of UWP on their own lives, their communities, and the communities to which we traveled. The enthusiasm is infectious and being able to bring that enthusiasm and perspective to young kids is so important. I'm excited about this opportunity and hope that any Oregon alumni who would like to stop by and swing clap with us know they are more than welcome. I want to see more and more alums get involved in their cities around the world!

What you most concerned about in pioneering a program like this in your community?

LA: Much of the success of launching a camp in Denver is location, location, location! The metro area is so large and it would be great to have locations spread out to all areas of the city making it super easy for people to have their choice of convenient locations: close to home, work, Grandma's house, or wherever. I'm confident if we can engage alumni in this first Denver camp, then they'll see how easy it will be to launch one in their own community.
CS: Right now, just getting the word out and finding a way to best describe what we do is so important. It's not just a performing arts camp and not just a multi-cultural camp. Getting parents who have never heard of UWP on board is key. I'm hoping we can plant some seeds this summer so that we'll continue to grow this program for future generations.

WE CHANGED LIVES BY PARTNERING WITH UWP

Written by Doug Zanes of Zanes Law in Tucson, AZ; the sponsor of Cast A 2017's tour to Tucson

Claudia and I lost a wonderful friend named Bill Holmes ('75C) on July 18, 2016. Many of you who are reading this were also blessed to know Bill. We are the fortunate ones. But to those of you who had not met Bill, I will tell you that he was simply a fantastic person. He seemed to move through life with pure appreciation and gratitude and was truly interested in having a positive impact on his world. So it was no surprise to me that, after we all said our goodbyes to Bill, I caught Claudia talking to Bill's best friend, Steve Rokowski ('71A), about what we could do to honor Bill. They wanted to create a legacy for him. So they talked for a while, and we all left that evening in agreement that we would connect again. That was the first step to creating The Bill Holmes Legacy Fund, and it was the conversation that culminated in bringing UWP to Tucson as the foundation to raise almost $240,000 in scholarship monies in honor of Bill. What a success! What an experience! What an honor!

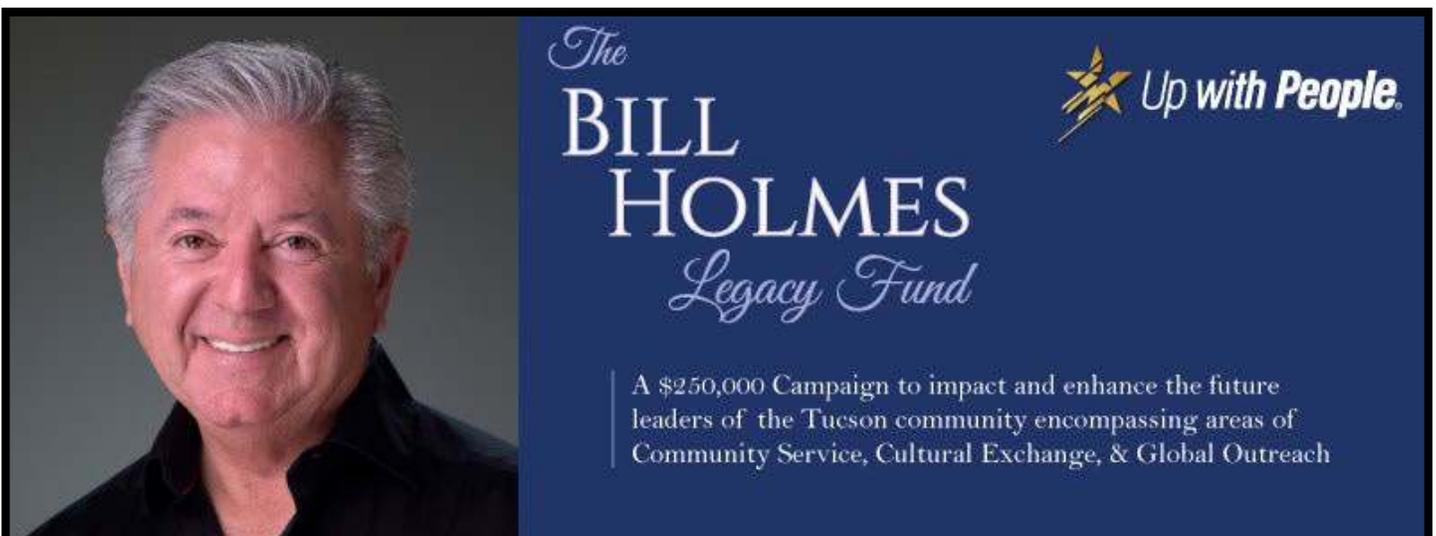

So, out of all this "amazingness," what stood out the most for Claudia, me, and our Zanes Law team? Here are the top three ways partnering with UWP helped us to change lives:

The Bill Holmes Legacy Fund. We raised almost $240,000 that will be used to provide UWP scholarships to deserving young people over the next fifteen years. That's amazing! The entire committee that Steve established to accomplish this feat did a fantastic job. Our role in this is something that Claudia and I will always be proud of. This fund will provide opportunity to its recipients and will change their lives, and they will, in turn, have a positive impact on the world. This is not only part of Bill's legacy, but it is also now part of ours. Simply put, Claudia and I are grateful; grateful to have been able to honor Bill, grateful to have been a driving force behind a fundraiser that will have a positive impact on young people for years to come, and grateful to have been part of an amazing group, which included everyone from the UWP cast and staff, to Steve, and to the committee members who worked so hard and raised so much money.

The community service. This was a wonderful opportunity for our Zanes Law team to impact our Tucson community. As a team, we enjoyed volunteering and helping at the Tucson Children's Museum, TMM Family Services, and at GAP Ministries.

The UWP team. Being part of this with UWP's young performers changed the lives of some of our Zanes Law team members. We loved getting to know them while doing community service and had a great time with them. We had two people in the firm act as host families:

"Words that describe being a host family for UWP would be: "life-altering for the entire family." Our cast member was so appreciative of what we had to offer. Being a first time host, we almost backed out because we didn't think we could handle the task. We decided at the last moment to continue and the experience has now given us an extended member of our family. We had been able to show her our neighborhood, church and go on some nature hikes. Our nine-year-old knew our cast member as her host sister and misses her dearly. Our cast member helped our daughter with a school project and they spent time doing each other's hair. We look forward to being a host family in the future."

—Jeanne Cote, Tucson host family

"We were hosts for Denis Maurer, a cast member with UWP during mid-March 2017. Denis has been on several tours with UWP and comes from a small town close to Zurich, Switzerland. In the evening, we shared history and customs as well as perspectives of world events and values. It was amazing to learn just how much we had in common despite the distance between Switzerland and the United States. As a student musician, Denis was a talented instrumentalist who could play several instruments and gave us guitar lessons one evening during the week. We were very impressed with Denis as well as all others that were associated with the UWP program.

—Richard Edelman, Tucson host family

Claudia and I believe that experiences are what life is all about: the experience of honoring a dear friend, the experience of being part of so many people coming together to do something great, the experience of seeing our Zanes Law team give back to the community that has given so much to us, and the experience of seeing so many people smile while enjoying the UWP show that we brought to town. Yes my friends, this has been one of those experiences that makes life wonderful and amazing.

AKTION CLUB MEMBERS JAM WITH UWP

Written by Michael Fields, an UWP host family and member of the Kiwanis Club of Cypress Aktion Club members from North Orange County and South Coast jammed with members of UWP on March 22 at Kiwanis Park in Fullerton, CA. During UWP's 2017 visit to Orange County, seven cast members had the unique opportunity to spend more than one hour with members of the Aktion Club in Region 3. Aktion club members learned a little about the cast members' home countries or state. The evening ended with a jam session where everyone sang songs chosen by both the UWP cast members and Aktion club members.

A first for UWP and a first for Aktion clubs, the evening proved how working together, our Kiwanis partnerships create beautiful music!
